MENACE TO BASEBALL IN NEW SUGGESTION

Advent of Theatrical Syndicate Into Big Leagues Considered Source of Danger -Sport Depends Upon Earnestness of Owners.

By THOMAS S. RICE.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 28.—Trouble is bound to arise between the rowing authorities of Harvard and Yale in determiting the date of the annual boat race between the two universities next June.

Baseball is confronted with the most serious crisis it has faced since the brotherhood, and no man can foresee the end.

The kernel of the nut of the present agitation over the purchase of the Philipped Philipped

There has been far less bickering among the American League magnates, "syndicate" and independent, but, since the league has gotten firmly on its feet there has never been a suspicion that every magnate was not out for all that every magnate was not out for all he could get in the way of playing he could get in the way of playing strength.

The teams have been almost preternaturally well balanced and almost every campaign has been of the hairraising order, but any insibuation that the races were "fixed" directly or indirectly has been entirely unfounded. The greatest tribute to the honesty of purpose in its playing that baseball will receive if it continues 1,000 years, is the fact that Detroit has won the American League pennant three times hand running, while St. Louis and New York have been in the ruck and at present show few signs of getting out.

Game to the core and as aggressive as bull dogs, the visitors waded in at the first blast of the referee's whistle, and, within several minutes after the opening. Georgetown realized it was up against a worthy foe and would have to utilize every ounce of its basketball knowledge to hold its opponents in check. Just before the close, the two teams ran neck and neck, first one a point ahead, and then the other. But MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 28.—Zbysco, the Pole, lost to Raoul de Rouen, the french wrestler, in the match at Sohmer Park.

The glant Pole undertook to throw de Rouen and Pengal, the Turk, inside of an hour, but did not get a chance at the Turk, as the Frenchman, first on the mat, stood him off for the full hour. Zbysco had the advantage in weight by about forty pounds.

The complication arcse from the fact that the Yale faculty recently changed commencement to the week perceeding the old date, and also the week before the Harvard commencement.

Eoth institutions are eager to have the race as part of their commencement program in order that as many graduates may be present as possible, and consequently, with the two competers expensively, with the two competers expensively, with the two competers expensively, and in that case it would suit neither college, and the graduates of both would suffer.

In order to escape the heat of the day the walkers left Baltimore during the night. For some days the men have been practicing for the event, but had not undertaken to do more than ten miles at a clip. According to one of the members of the party, the training had not been sufficient, and for that reason the time made was a little longer than was at first expected. All were confident that with proper practice the same distance can be negotiated in considerable less time.
